General Site Analysis

Twelve sites in all were inspected by the Consultant Engineering Firm during their investigation for preferred sites. They are as follows: Lions Park School, Coleman; Cameron School, West Coleman; Horace Allen High School, North Coleman; Central Elementary School, South Coleman; Coleman Arena, South Coleman; New Composite High School, I.D. No. 5; Armouries Site, Blairmore; Isabelle Sellen Recreational Area, South Blairmore; Congdon's Property, Blairmore; M. D. McEachern School, Bellevue; Arena, Bellevue; Plateau north of Frank, Mineral Springs, Frank.

Preferred Sites

All sites were then examined with the following question in mind:

- How was the site located with reference to the centre of population density of the entire Crowsnest Pass area under study.
- How was the site located with reference to the centre of population of the nearest town.
- The relationship of each site to the geographic centre of the entire Crowsnest Pass area.
- The location of the site in relationship to the elementary and high schools as well as the shift in student population expected after the new composite high school is completed.
- Projected future general development of the Crowsnest Pass area for commercial, residential and tourist expansion.
- General transportation and parking requirements.

The result of this analysis was the selection of three "preferred" sites. They are as follows:

1. The proposed new composite high school to be located just east of Coleman.
2. The former Armouries site in Blairmore.
3. The Isabelle Sellen High School and Blairmore Arena sites in Blairmore.

Final Site Selection

The Old Armouries site was selected as the most suitable for the following reasons:

- (a) It is considered the closest to the centre of population of the entire Crowsnest Pass area.
- (b) Although it is somewhat west of the centre of the existing population areas of Blairmore, all future Blairmore residential expansion must be towards the west. In time this would place the recreational site in the centre of the Blairmore population.
- (c) It is reasonably close to the geographic centre of the Crowsnest Pass area.
- (d) This site has no particular relationship to existing schools, however, this feature was reduced in importance due to the many schools involved in the Crowsnest Pass area.
- (e) It is the engineer's considered opinion that commercial and tourist expansion in Blairmore will continue to grow with the ultimate result of attracting a greater residential expansion in Blairmore than in other Crowsnest Pass centres.
- (f) This site is on the main highway and has sufficient area for parking and building expansion. This building expansion potential is considered to be very important.
- (g) All utility services now exist.

Although the other two preferred sites had many advantages as well they were not chosen for the following reasons:

1. Proposed new composite high school east of Coleman - Basically this site is too far west of both the geographical and population centres of the Crowsnest Pass. Due partly to the increased distance it is the engineer's opinion that the residents of Bellevue and Hillcrest would not be induced to make much use of the new swimming pool at this location.

2. Isabelle Sellen High School and Blairmore Arena - This site was considered very closely due to the existing recreational facilities. However the lack of planning the entire area when building the arena, and the fact that this arena is much better suited to outdoor sports, caused it to be rejected as the new swimming site. Parking would also be a problem in this area.

Type of Construction

It is recommended that the pool tank be 26 metres size (42'x22'11") which is the usual standard for Alberta Municipal pools. This is one half Olympic size and is most suitable for competitive training. The tank will have a shallow end depth of 2' 9" and the deep-end diving depth of 11'. One 1 metre and one 3 metre diving boards should be provided.

The bathhouse should be constructed of durable materials on the floors and walls. The roof should be of galvanized beams and cedar decking. The walls are constructed of concrete block and face brick.

The pool enclosure structure should be constructed of concrete block and brick walls, galvanized beams of cedar decking. The heating and ventilating system should be combined so that the humidity within the building can be closely controlled.

Cost Estimates

This estimate was completed in detail by quantity surveyor and construction estimator. As this estimate was completed in April, 1969, all summary figures have been increased by one per cent to allow for an estimated annual increase in construction of 12 per cent per year.

(a) pool, deck and pipe trench	$46,114
(b) bathhouse	40,700
(c) pool enclosure	93,950
(d) electrical, mechanical	92,364

Total estimated

construction costs	$273,028
(e) engineering fees	17,726

Total estimated building

costs (less land)	$290,754
-------------------	-----------

This estimated cost is based on a finished building ready for the Owner's use. Land costs, landscaping parking area and future recreational facilities have not been included.

Recommendations

The proposed municipal swimming pool for Crowsnest Pass area should be an enclosed structure located at the east end of the Old Armouries site in accordance with the sketch drawings.

It is also recommended that the entire block be preserved for the future development of a Crowsnest Pass Recreational Centre of this design as to satisfy the recreational needs of the entire Crowsnest Pass area.

Council Makes $400 Grant To Library

Coleman council at its regular meeting approved the annual donation of the sum of $400 to the Coleman community library.

Reports at the meeting indicated that the term of Mel Cornett as Coleman's trustee on the Crowsnest Pass Municipal Hospital Board will expire this term. Mr. Cornett completed the unexpired term of Stu Murdoch. There will also be three vacancies on council as the terms of Fred MacLeod and John Binda expire and the third vacancy was created by the resignation of Peter Walker who moved from Coleman. Nominations for the vacancies will be accepted until Sept. 17th.

Council approved town foreman Rudy Seymanek attending a fluid power school to be held in Lethbridge in the near future.

A water analysis report from the provincial department of health indicated there was no contamination in local water supply.

The number of Canadians disabled by arthritis and the other rheumatic diseases is more than the total number of deaths in Canada in 1966.

Highways Minister Attends Canada Games

Hon. Gordon Taylor, Alberta Minister of Highways and Transport, attended the Canada Games at Halifax, as the representative of the Alberta Government. The Government representatives were guests of Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia, for a cruise on Bluenose II, when the Alberta Minister assisted The Right Honourable Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Prime Minister of Canada, to steer the famous vessel. As the picture was taken, the Alberta Minister said: "This will look good on the prairies!" He continued, "Alberta can really be proud of its athletes, proud of those who won gold, silver and bronze medals, and proud of every one of the others, all of whom participated in a sportsman-like way. The Canada Games can be a real unifying force in our country," the Alberta Minister stated as he noted that every province in Canada, the Yukon Territory, and the Northwest Territories participated with more than 2,700 athletes taking part in the various games.

Phillips Employees Accept Co. Proposal

Employees of Phillips Cables (Western) Limited at a secret ball of held in Coleman Friday Sept. 12 voted in favor of accepting the company's proposals which results in a 70 cent per hour raise to be given over a two year period.

The vote showed 66 favored accepting the proposal and 17 were against. Had negotiations between the company and the employees been stalemated the Union would have called a strike to start at 6 p.m. Friday Sept. 12.

Frank Houde, president of the Blairmore Canadian Electrical Workers Union Local 2, stated that he was pleased with the results of the negotiations arrived at between the Union and the Cable Plant officials. Meetings were held in Blairmore on Thursday and Friday between company officials John McQue (plant manager) and Fern Paquette (production manager) and Union officials including Mr. Hender, vice-president of the Canadian Electrical Workers Union George Brown of Vancouver and local committee men Wilbur Raymond and William Gairns.

The employees of Phillips Cables will receive 70 cents per hour increase over two years. An immediate increase of 30 cent per hour retroactive to Feb. 1968 takes place immediately, another increase of 20 cents per hour becomes effective Oct. 15, 1969 and the final 20 cents per hour raise comes due June 17, 1970. The company will also pay 50 per cent of the employees medical health plan. Several other non monetary benefits were also gained by the Union.

Preventive Pointers

A little over a year ago, the Preventive Social Service Director organized a meeting between Brockle and Pincher Creek Citizens, interested in furthering friendship between Indians and whites. Out of this small beginning, came the formation of the Napi Friendship Association (Napi is Blackfoot for friend). This association, now employs its own full time director, Mr. Peter Cresswell, and he is operating a most exciting and constructive program.

During the summer months, trail rides, swimming parties and family exchanges have been held by the Napi Friendship Association. In these, as in all of their activities, there has been participation by both white people in Pincher Creek, and Indian people from Brockle, with the aim of getting to know one another to respect one another's culture, and establish the bonds of true friendship. During the coming month of September, the association has several exciting programs planned. One of these is "project ABC" (Any Body Can). This project consists of a series of programs beginning in September, and carrying on through the fall months, focusing on such programs as:

Alcohol - Division of Alcohol Budgeting & Financing - Pincher Creek Credit Union

Health - Peigan Health Centre
Another program, which is more in the entertainment line, involved a Waterton Hike, held Saturday, September 6. This hike was led by Preventive Social Service Director, Harold Coward, and Albert Yellowhorn Jr. from Brockle. It consisted of a 12 mile hike from Cameron Lake over Carthew Summit, dropping down into Carthew Lakes, Alderson Lake, and ending up at Cameron Falls in the Waterton town site. The hike left from Cameron Lake at 9:15 a.m. and involved the whole day.

Another project that the Friendship Association is working on, involves an exchange program between Peigan Indian teen-agers and Maori teen-agers. Later this month, a "Tall Tales Evening" will be held by the Napi Friendship Association.

In recognition of the considerable contribution that the Napi Association is making in bringing together the white and Indian communities, and fostering a better understanding between races, Peter Cresswell was recently named "Kai-pok-a" (Bear Child) after the frontier scout, Jerry Potts. This recognition emphasizes the fact that something is being achieved in the way of a constructive approach to the many problems that have separated the Indians and the white races in the past.

Any resident of the Crowsnest Pass, who would like to learn more about the Friendship Association, or to participate in any of the coming programs, can write Peter Cresswell, Napi Friendship Association, Box 687, Pincher Creek, or contact us at the Preventive Social Service Office.

The Napi Association is proving that - "Emphasizing the Positive is Eliminating the Negative".

Sod Turning Ceremony Held

John Sals, Coleman, chairman of the Crowsnest Pass School Division No. 63 turned the first sod Sept. 10th to start construction on the new composite high school that will serve the entire Crowsnest Pass.

Mr. Sals gave a resume of the negotiations that were held before the final decision on building the school was made. The new school he said would serve all the high school needs of the Pass and the present schools in Blairmore and Coleman, now used for high school, would accommodate the elementary classes. Both high schools in Blairmore and Coleman were built recently and a new school was also built at Bellevue which is an elementary school building.

In addition to solving the need for school space, Mr. Sals said, the new school was planned to provide a more comprehensive school program and thus give the students an opportunity to gain an education in other patterns than just a straight academic program.

The new school should be completed this coming spring and should be ready for occupancy. In the fall semester in 1970, Mr. Sals stated the total gross area of the building would be 73,413 square feet and the area of the school site was 24.02 acres.

Charles Drinn MLA was present and commended the board for a job well done. He said the new school was the culmination of much work and planning and would further serve to integrate the Crowsnest Pass more closely.

Guests at the ceremony were then taken on a tour of the site by Horace Allen, principal designate of the new school and William Ede, superintendent of schools.

Our Churches

by David W. Hembling, B.A.,
B.D., C.P.E.

People claim to be quite concerned over the fact that our churches are more empty than ever before, not just of ordinary parishioners, but of "our young people." This theme, or some variant on it, is presented to me daily, as I visit in homes and talk with concerned parents in the Pass. But it would strike most of us as quite odd indeed, if the most establishment-oriented institution of all, the Church, suddenly began to attract many adolescents. So long as the Church continues to be cherished as the receptacle of traditionalism and outdated mores, an influx of "young people" into its pews is about as likely as a pillow-fight in the local Town Council.

It is natural for the adolescent and his family to undergo a period of conflict, especially while the adolescent is struggling to resolve some major conflicts. The critical conflict is one involving his own identity, the discovery outside of the family walls of just "who I am." Another, and one that is made more severe in a free society is resolving the tension created when authority comes across as authoritarianism.

The problem of identity is essentially one of discovery, of testing out and trying the many alternatives which are picked up from around oneself; sometimes this is made the more difficult when parents or close friends are coercing the "discoverer" in some already-decided direction. "It would be so nice if John would go on to become a such and such, just like so and so did." But nobody in all this world is wise enough to know what another person should do, let alone what he should become as an adult person; this critical task can only be undertaken by the adolescent himself. An atmosphere of acceptance, support, and love will provide the kind of setting in which adolescent discovery, though accompanied by considerable pains, will lead into mature manhood and womanhood. What a task, to grow into a whole adult person, with roots planted in so fragmented and so unsure a world!

But a problem which often restricts the natural process of discovering one's identity between the years of puberty and adulthood, is the destructive environment created by authoritarianism, when it masks itself in the name of responsibility. There is an enormous difference, one too seldom ignored, between honest, to goodness, responsible authority, and its lesser, coercive impostor-authoritarianism. Part of the problem stems from the fact that there has been a disenchantment in recent times with what has been established by the former generations. Contemporary and personal experience are held in far greater esteem these days, than the "authority" of someone else's experience. When a father begins to doubt his rights as the head of the household, his worth as a good father and as one who can assure the welfare of his family, rather than admit or acknowledge his uneasiness he may resort to the coercive tactics of authoritarianism. He may, thus, demand respect, not on the grounds of his person, his integrity and responsibility as a man, but on the grounds of his role as head man, as boss, as chief of the tribe. "Don't do what I do, but do what I say" is one of the best examples of this kind of false authority; it leads only to alienation, disrespect, distance in the relationship, and the disintegration of family life as the stable place where the adolescent may come and go, while undergoing his burdens and pains in the search for his independent adult identity.

It is ironic that in a time when tremendous movement is now the norm, both between cities and within the same city, that the adolescent who needs mobility, emotionally in many ways more than others in society, is often re-assigned to the baby buggy, if the modern mother's motorized baby buggy at that. In a crucial time of life, when the adolescent is attempting to discover his identity outside the family confines, he is forced to renew his dependence on his parents, the key thing he is trying to outgrow, in the form of needing a ride in the family car - which he is, so often, not quite old enough to drive. No wonder the motorcycle is welcomed as a bit of divine Grace, in the midst of so urgent a need for freedom, and this adds to the emotional liberation of growing up.

Volunteers Needed For Safety Campaign

The Alberta Safety Council is asking for help!

At least 500 volunteers are going to be needed Saturdays in late September and during October to man an information campaign designed to get more people into car safety belts.

The need for such a campaign in Alberta is growing urgent says Safety Council President, Ralph Couper. Public apathy over the use of safety belts costs Alberta hundreds of deaths and injuries each year, he believes.

"We know that fewer than one person in 5 ever bothers to fasten a safety belt, despite the fact that belts are proven life savers in the event of an accident," Mr. Couper states. "We estimate that 150 or more lives would be saved each year in this province if everyone who has a safety belt available would wear it whenever the car is in motion." Last year, over 400 people died in Alberta traffic accidents.

The Alberta Safety Council's safety belt campaign needs volunteer help because it will be:

- conducted province-wide — aimed at reaching thousands of people directly in their cars — based on volunteer-operated information booths set up in hundreds of locations throughout Edmonton and Calgary and other centres.

"This is too big and important a job to be left in the hands of a few; we need hundreds of people in Edmonton and Calgary alone," says Mr. Couper. Prospective volunteers are asked to leave their names with the Safety Council offices in Edmonton, 10526 Jasper Avenue and in Calgary, 620-7th Avenue S.W., J. J. Bowlen Building.

July Traffic Statistics

"Too much booze . . . but not enough belts!"

"This needless mis-match has multiplied death and disaster for Alberta motorists," says Ralph Couper, President of the Alberta Safety Council.

Investigation of the 44 fatal auto crashes which took 63 lives in Alberta during July shows drivers or pedestrians had been drinking in about one quarter of the cases.

The "belts" lacking of course, were safety belts not in use at the time of the accident, the safety council president explains. "We estimate 11 to 16 more lives would have been saved during July if the accident victims had been wearing safety belts that were available to them in the death cars."

"July, 1969 has turned out to be the worst month we've ever had for traffic deaths in this province," President Couper continues. "The most shocking part of the story is how needless it is."

"I know of at least one case where police on the scene reported two people were saved because they wore safety belts. I am sorry there couldn't have been more cases like that this past July." The Safety Council President declares.

Mr. Couper believes the main reason for the lack of safety belt use is public apathy. "Most people agree safety belts are good protection, but they still don't use them. We intend to attack this apathy with a province-wide campaign to increase the use of safety belts. This campaign begins September 29th."

During July, 24 drivers, 30 passengers, 6 pedestrians, 2 bicyclists, and one motorcyclist died. The 63 total was 14 higher than the five year July average.

As well, there were 1,204 people injured and 4,912 accidents reported. One of the highest ever monthly property damage totals, about 2.5 million dollars, was recorded in July.

SEWING FAKE FURS

This will be the season of the fabulous fakes — wild life look-alikes in synthetic fur fabric. The four look-alikes range anywhere from the flat to the fluffy in patterns taken from the jungle (leopard, tiger, etc.), Canadian wild life (mink, red fox, etc.), and the farm (calf, lamb, etc.).

Choose your Pattern and Fabric Carefully — Use your fake fur both inside and out. Line a coat, trim a jacket, sew a vest or a skirt — don't limit your imagination. The pattern you select will depend on the type of fur you buy. With the bulkier deep pile furs use a simple design which has little detail and lots of straight lines. Avoid patterns which have pocket flaps, bound buttonholes unless you are willing to spend lots of time and patience on the garment. Avoid "sueded" seams as the fake fur fabrics are difficult to ease. Sleeves may be set in, however, a raglan sleeve will be much easier. Don't forget that these fake furs are a nap fabric so consult the "wide nap" yardage requirements on the pattern envelope for the correct amount of fabric to purchase. A word of caution — read the care instructions printed on the hang tags on the end of the bolt. Some of these fabrics are washable, but most are drycleanable. Many of the fake furs are water repellent.

Water Test — Before you buy fold the fabric and examine the folded edge. If the hairs are sparse, the fabric will quickly show signs of wear.

Some Dos and Don'ts in Sewing Furs —

1. Make all alterations on the pattern first before you cut. Alterations made directly on the fur fabric will leave permanent marks. If you are not sure of the fit of the garment make it out of muslin first. The muslin can then be used as the pattern from which to cut the fur.

2. Straighten the raw edges of your fabric by cutting along one thread of the woven back or along a line drawn at right angles to a rib of the knitted backing.

3. Always use the "wide nap" layout. For long haired furs, the nap should run down.

4. If the fur has prominent markings, match these as closely as possible much as you would with a plaid.

5. Spread the fabric with wrong side up and pin the pattern to the backing. For the long haired fabrics, each piece should be cut separately. Remember to reverse the pattern piece after cutting the first half so that you will have both a right and left side to your garment.

6. Cut with sharp shears. Use a single edge razor blade for long haired furs. Cut carefully so that you cut only the backing and not the long hairs.

7. Don't cut out the notches. Indicate their location with tailor chalk.

8. Place all markings on the wrong side of the fabric with tail or chalk.

9. Smooth furs can have self-facings, bulky furs should have facings cut from another fabric.

10. Use a long stitch — 8 to 10 stitches per inch. Use a slightly looser tension and mercerized thread. Be sure to test stitch on a scrap of fabric first.

11. If stitching through several layers decrease the pressure on the pressure foot slightly.

12. Stitch in the direction of the nap. Push the pile away from the seam as you stitch.

13. To avoid the "clipped off" look and hair caught into the seam, use a pin to gently pull the hairs out of the seam.

14. To eliminate bulk on very long haired furs, shear the pile from all seam allowances.

15. Slash through the centre fold of all darts and press open.

16. The invisible zipper can be inserted very successfully in the short pile fabrics. For long haired furs, sew the zipper in by hand.

Letters to the Editor

Editor
Coleman Journal
Dear Sir:

Enclosed is a cheque to pay up my subscription and to extend it a few more years.

I like to keep in touch with the happenings in the town. Some day we hope to visit the area again — the children really liked the mountains.

Our part of Ohio is green, — very pastoral — in fact much like England. It is very lovely but in the summers you can have too much heat and too much humidity.

Thank you for sending the Journal and give my regards to the folks in Coleman.

Yours truly,
Olwen Brown,
Columbus, Ohio.

Recreation News

A very special step was taken by the Recreation Board at their Special Meeting on September 3rd, 1969.

At this meeting the Board decided unanimously to proceed ahead with a swimming pool for the Pass. The Board decided to approach each council and tax collecting agency in our area with a request that they be asked to raise their share Capital Costs for a Crownest Pass swimming pool.

In addition the Board decided to purchase a model of the pool to be used on display of the kind of physical facility they have decided upon. Colored photographs were also ordered and will form part of a kit that the Board will use in their campaign for the pool.

This decision by the Board was made shortly after they received their Preliminary Swimming Pool Report for the Crownest Pass by A. C. Milroy and Associates. This report is the end product of a lot of hard work by the Board and Consultant, but merely begins the even bigger task of actually building the pool.

The community of the Pass will be informed on the Capital Cost breakdown for each Council as these figures are obtained. Operational figures will also be included.

The Pass Pool Project Committee at their meeting of September 4th, decided to continue on with an even more extensive program in support of a pool.

The Project Committee and the Recreation Board will continue to work hand in hand in promoting an enclosed Pool for the Pass.

Defensive Driving Courses To Start

Once more, the Alberta Safety Council is inviting participation by Alberta communities in the Defensive Driving Courses.

Starting September 25, two-day instructor development courses will be held in Edmonton and Calgary, intended to prepare volunteers for service in this program. The Safety Council has volunteer instructors in more than 40 points in the province. However, the Council intends to continue expanding the program until every community with a population of more than 2,000 is served with its own resident instructors.

The reason for this program is evident everywhere. A mounting traffic death and injury toll is affecting every rural and urban community. Long lists of bereaved families, leaderless businesses, and crippled farm operations point out the need for such an effective restraining of drivers — a good defence for longer living.

The Safety Council hopes local organizations looking for a good public service project will sponsor the Defensive Driving Course in their communities. A complete information kit will be sent to them on request.

Although the Council is unable to pay the expenses of volunteers attending the two-day instructor development course, it is hoped that potential local sponsors will pick up the tab, and recover the expenses in the course of the program. The Alberta Safety Council can be contacted in Edmonton at 16326 Jasper Avenue.
